The Powell Girls, a male voice choir from Edinburgh, specialise in singing traditional folk music. The group was formed in 1924 and now includes a regular accompanist, with the sound further enhanced by a double bass player – tapping musical exhuberance! The group has a long-established tradition of singing traditional folk music, often complete with unaccompanied verse drama. The Toronto Voices from Toronto, Ontario, Canada. They draw inspiration from the town and the fishing industry that was once the life-blood of their town.

Born in the Borders, MATT SEATTLE has been a performing musician since 1984 as a guitarist, and since 1988 as a fiddler and since 1991 as a piper. Later he has been known to sing a little . . .

The Appalachian clawing style, named by the Red Book of Bute and by the Appalachian clawing style, which was taken to the New World by European settlers from the 17th century onward. Appalachian clawing started to become popular in Britain in the 1930s. The clawers, usually bare feet, with the toes and strumming each note, played a style of clawing, or may include traditional clawing, clawing fingers, or even contraclawing, played both with a claw and a claw.

The small hall band. This group of young musicians has been going since 1995 and has played over 250 gigs throughout Scottish Borders and beyond. Many original members have since become successful professional or student musicians. The current band, about 20 in number, continues the tradition of playing music for concerts and high energy ceilidhs on traditional instruments – fiddles, fiddles, whistle, guitar, accordion, bodhran and keyboard.

A VELY WARM WELCOME is extended to all our visitors to this, our annual event to mark the association of the historic town of Selkirk and Sir Walter Scott. You will be able to enjoy and experience Selkirk as it was in the 19th Century during Sir Walter’s time as Sheriff of the Royal and Ancient Burgh. Capture the atmosphere within the Courtyard building as some of his cases are re-enacted including two never before seen – “The Tall Tale of the Tushielaw Trout” and “The Graveyard Grievance”. Enjoy the street entertainment along our ancient High Street and in the Market Place, be captivated by the live traditional music playing within the County Pond and Meg Dod’s kitchen as well as performances from our own highly regarded Flute, Silver and Pipe Bands. Take advantage of the shopping delights to be had at the market stalls and shops in the town, as well as the wide choice of venues for food and refreshments, from light bites with a cuppa to delicious multi-course meals with wine.

This programme includes all the details of the many activities that are ongoing over the Scott’s Selkirk weekend, but if you need any further information, or wish to hire a costume then please enquire at our shop and event headquarters at 18 Market Place, we will be open from 10.00 am both days.

Once again, a very warm welcome to one and all, and I hope you enjoy your weekend.

Tommy Combe
Maister, Scott’s Selkirk

COURSE HIRE ~ BOTH DAYS
Participate fully in the time-travel experience! It’s not too late to hire a costume: period clothing and accessories are available from the Scott’s Selkirk HQ, Market Place, both days from 10.00.
